WEEK 276: SUPER MOM & HER BEDHEAD SON
NOTEWORTHY NEWS FROM WILLS

How you doin'?

Well, I'm a little behind schedule, but now I'm baaack! And I have a buncha happy homecomings to report! Here's the kits who've gone home:

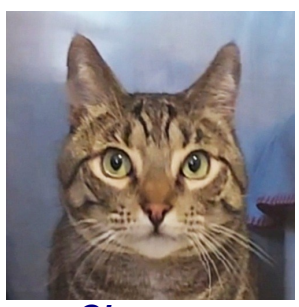

Sugar and Spice

Sonny

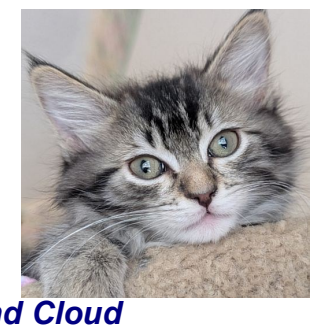

Giaco

Martone

Storm and Cloud

Tempest and Twister

As y'all can see, we had lotsa pairs go home together, and this week I'm gonna introduce you to yet another bonded pair. These two are a tad different, though—instead of bein' siblings, we have a mom (Athena) and her son (Hunter).

Athena and her son, Hunter - two months ago

This grrreat pair were strays who came from the Forks area. We think Athena is a little over a year old. She's a real nice-looking tortie with medium-length hair and a cute little tail that's 'bout 3/4 the length of most tails. She's been a super mom to her little son, Hunter, who's now just a few days short of five months old. He doesn't look a thing like his mom, but from what I've heard, sons (and daughters, for that matter) don't hafta look like their moms. And Hunter is a prime example. He's a medium-haired orange tabby with white paws, and his outstanding characteristic is his hair. It's a mess! I've heard it referred to as a perpetual bedhead! 'Course I hafta admit that it's a mess 'cause his mom keeps trying to fix it by constantly grooming him. And that seems to make it messier!

Aside from the hair thing, or mebbe 'cause of it, Athena is super devoted to her baby boy, and near as I can tell, he feels the same 'bout her. The little guy started out pretty timid, but he's starting to play lots more and stay busy with the important business of bein' a kitten. And yes, he tolerates having his mom relentlessly fix his hair!

They both enjoy spending time on their catio, curled up together and lounging in the sunshine. 'Course that was before fall started moving into winter and there was still reliable sunshine! And they love their wand toy and treats (and who doesn't like treats?)

Hunter and his mom, Athena - two days ago!

If this pair intrigues you and you'd like to have a "meet 'n greet" with Hunter and his mom, just pick up the phone and give us a call. Staff would love to tell y'all 'bout our cool duo. And if you like what you hear, make an appointment and come on down to the shelter to meet these two kool kats! And be sure to check out their video on my webpage—it's grrreat!

Now, before I forget, we have a big event comin' up. I'll give you a hint: it's always on the same day—October 29. And it's a huge deal for cats all 'round the country. Do y'all give up? Well, I'll tell you. It's National Cat Day, and Black Bear Diner, at the east end of Sequim, has been real nice and volunteered to host the event again this year. You can choose to have breakfast, lunch or dinner, and all you hafta do is tell them you're there for the PFOA benefit and pick up a coupon. Then give 'em back the coupon when you pay, and they'll donate 20% of the cost of your meal to us … for the kitties! I'll tell y'all more next week, so stay tuned!

Thanks for listening!
